IN JUDICIAL FIGHT

Desperate Battle Before House Committee Tonight.

Substitute Measure May Be Sent Back to Senate.

Friends of the state administration will probably make a desperate fight before the house judicial apportion-ment committee tonight for a favor-able report on the bill which passed the senate last week. Failing to push through this bill, drafting of a new apportionment is one of the top line measures in the state administration program. Fallure to pass some sort of judicial apportionment act after a bill has gone through the Democratic senate will clearly put the administration in a hole. For that reason, all possible influence will doubtless be brought to bear on the committee which will tonight consider the senate bill.

So the house committee met and had difficulty in getting his cart through the mud that is said to be a more or less general tendency to almost knee deep.

This is today the program of the administration in the house. They Then, with the influence of a caucus, it is hoped to whip into line enough members to pass the bill. That will members to pass the bill. That will check the house bill up to the senate for action in the closing hours of the session.

There is admittedly no house that was duly killed in the senate. This year the senate checked the matter back to the house. Now the question has become a fight of the house and senate strategy boards. Neither the house nor senate immediately boards. Neither the house nor senate immediately withdrew house nor senate immediately withdrew o'clock this afternoon the wind was indical apportionment at this session.

But the proposition was recom-mended in the governor's message and is an administration pledge. So there there is just that possibility that the senate might call the house bluff—assuming that the substitute should be recommended tonight—and pass the house bill.

> The house of representatives will now be given an opportunity of putting on the statute books the civil service law proposed in the bill by Senator Francis C. Other amendments cut down the proposed operation of the law. Then came a proposition to pay all inheritance tax fees into the county school fund instead of the general revenue fund of the state. While this provision was under consideration it was moved to strike out the enacting clause. A rising vote carried 58 to37.

Tom Moxeey of Atchison, Democrat, led the general fight against the provisions of the bill. He made an effective speech against the policy of taxing widows and orphans for their bereavement and urged the defeat of In the senate last Saturday, the judicial apportionment bill was recommended, considered and passed in something less than two hours. colleagues to side with the administra-tion upon the recommendations of Auditor Davis, which he had accepted in good faith as authoritative, was the assertion of Senator Noah L. Bowman who consistently opposed the building items in the educational budget while it was under consideration on the sen ate floor.
"In making up my own mind as to the needs of these institutions I have relied upon the report of the auditor," said Bowman. "I have assumed that he made these recommendations upon a personal knowledge of the facts gained by his period of service in of-fice. If he has made recommenda-tions, he ought to be able to tell on what grounds htose recommendations were based. I have followed his ad-vice in this matter and I have not at any time supported the senate bill for the state schools. But if it is shown here that the auditor has made his recommendations without any actual knowledge of the needs which they are intended to cover I shall reserve my right to change my stand upon them. I believe the auditor should be given a chance to inform us exactly what influenced him in the conclu-sions which appear in his latest report to this body

Carey, Republican. "As a matter of fact, I believe it is generally realized that the auditor's estimates are more a matter of formality than anything else. But in this situation I believe that we ought to act on our own judgment in the final consideration of these appropriation bills with a view to getting together on a measure that will serve the state in the wisest way at this time. Whatever we do we ought now to try to avoid complica-tions of a purely political nature that can merely interfere with the reach-ing of a desirable solution of the pres-

I therefore feel that, while the information asked for from the auditor is pertinent to the subject of the present disagreement, to inject him into this argument at this time would be an exceedingly unwise step. It means the injection of an element of partisanship into the situation which has up to the present time played no part in the deliberations of drugs. They were placed on parole before the federal law went into effect. There other persons have made application for aid from the county to fight their habits, not knowing of the city's intentions in the matter.

It is believed that many users secured large supplies in anticipation of the working of the federal law. As these supplies become exhausted more victims will be seeking cures.

Bad at Kansas City.

Kansas iCty. March 5.—It became apparent today that provision will have to be made for more hospital room in Kansas City in which to cure women drug victims suffering from the lack of opiates since the federal drug law went into effect. The places here where the cure can be had free are already overflowing, and investigaters say the rush for the cure is not yet started.
